The American School Counselor Association (ASCA) Model is followed by the counselor. The foundation of this model is for school counselors to create comprehensive school counseling programs that focus on student outcomes, teach student competencies and are delivered with identified professional competencies. In addition, the counselor has a strict code of ethics to be followed within her scope of practice. The counselor also has a therapeutic orientation that she utilizes. Typically, in a school setting, this includes person-centered and solution-focused. The counselor keeps logs of students that she meets with, as well as notes for each session to better assist the child each time they come in. The counselor also meets with teachers as needed to discuss academic progress and areas for growth. At the end of each nine weeks, the counselor reviews student grades to track those that may be in danger of failing. Letters are sent home at the beginning of the third nine weeks so parents/guardians are aware of areas needing improvement to meet pupil progression. In addition, the counselor meets with the students in danger of failing throughout the second semester to assist with grade improvements. Observations inside the classroom are completed when necessary for the counselor to gain more insight into a student's academic and social needs. Releases of information are available for parents/guardians to bring to any outside providers so the counselor can coordinate services with outside counselors, therapists, doctors, etc. After discipline has been issued, the counselor may meet with the students to discuss the incident(s) and form solutions to move forward in a more positive direction and learn from past mistakes. Fifth Ward Junior High does not track diploma progress itself, because we do not offer diplomas upon graduation. However, during the students' eighth grade year, intensive guidance is provided to the students to plan for their diploma pathway throughout high school. During these meetings, the counselor discusses interests, likes, and future career and college goals with the students to better assist them with which pathway to choose. The counselor documents these goals with the students on their Individual Graduation Plans (IGPs). Career and interest assessments and surveys may be utilized during counseling sessions, however, because FWJH is a junior high school, a more indirect approach is typically utilized. Students meet with the counselor to discuss interests and high school pathways throughout their second semester of 8th grade. Students are brought to the high school to learn about their transition to be made after leaving FWJH. Students then meet with the counselor both in groups and individually to discuss their Individual Graduation Plan and to choose a diploma pathway for high school. These pathways often challenge the student to prepare and plan for their future by choosing a route that best suits their personal interests and future career goals, including college goals.

4. Regular Monitoring and SIP Revision

- The SIP remains in effect for the duration of the school year, except the plan and its implementation shall be regularly monitored and revised as necessary based on student needs to ensure that all students are provided opportunities to meet the challenging State academic standards.
- The school will annually evaluate the implementation of, and results achieved by, the schoolwide program using data from the State’s annual assessments and other indicators of academic achievement to determine whether the plan has been effective in increasing achievement of students in meeting the State’s academic standards, particularly for those students who had been furthest from achieving the standards. The school will revise the plan, as necessary, based on the results of the evaluation, to ensure continuous improvement of students in the schoolwide program.
